Potholes on Hwy 18B are Safety Concern for Willamina Residents

Willamina community members have requested assistance from the City of Willamina to repair the pavement surrounding the railroad crossing on Main Street at the intersection near the Galloping Goose, Garden Spot Park, and Willamina IGA. Main Street, also known as Hwy. 18B or Hwy 157 is an ODOT (Oregon Department of Transportation) thoroughfare, and the City is not authorized to make repairs on county or state roads. Community members driving over the railroad tracks have expressed concerns about damage to their vehicles; other community members have expressed concerns about using the crossing points when using alternative modes of transportation, such as individuals using ADA mobility devices (wheelchairs, walkers, etc.), pedestrians, bicyclists, families using strollers, and more. The Willamina public works director contacted ODOT to provide the following email address for those who wish to express their safety concerns; AskODOT@odot.state.or.us.

A BEAUTY OF A BEAST: Jim Malo, a retired heavy machine operator, purchased this 1962 Nova about eight years ago. The Nova started life with a six-cylinder engine and a two-speed transmission. The car was in rough shape, requiring a new floor, quarter panel, and other bodywork. It was then painted a stunning cream and two-tone blue color. The car now sports a 427 small block engine, 350 turbo transmission (with 4500 stall converter), and a nine-inch Ford rear-end (with 4:41 gears). Power is planted to the ground with 9x28 slicks. A HEIDTS front-end handles front control. Kathy (Jim's wife ) doesn't use this car to get groceries, as it is very fast, turning 130 miles per hour @7000 rpm on the quarter-mile track. Any competition better look out for this beauty of a beast Nova. (Photo and information courtesy of Gary Meyer.)

The Mystery coupe was featured in Vol.8 No. 36., issue of the Bulletin Board published on Oct. 26, 2022. The eye-catching feature of the 1929 Chrysler Business Coupe is its excellent red paint. Initially run in black and white, the photo is now in color so everyone can see the beauty that owner Don Witter produced with this 'one of a kind' car. (Photo and information courtesy of Gary Meyer.)

WHAT'S UP
by mary jane

Oh, gosh. This subject is always on someone's mind. Volunteers. Yes, we need them, and there are a lot of them out there, but... If you volunteer, thank you; if you don't, what are you waiting for? All sorts of volunteer positions are open for all ages that can do all kinds of things. None I know of require a diploma or credentials. I'm not talking about a driver's license or anything like that. All that's needed is a will to help do something for someone else. I know the West Valley Community Campus is always looking for folks to help do something... sweep, trim, vacuum, move stuff and the list goes on.

On the third Saturday of every month, they have work day. It starts around 9 a.m. and continues until you tire out or have something else to do. They will provide a lunch for the workers. Then there's the City, which can always use a hand with the parks. We have several in town. The VFW can use a helping hand now and then, too. The list goes on and on if you just look around and ask.

Helping our community is "What's Up in Willamina."

Merle Doyle McGill 1936-2023

Merle Doyle McGill died peacefully at home on Sunday, Jan. 1, 2023. He was the oldest of five, born to Dorothy and Lee Roy McGill in Wagner, Okla., in 1936. His parents and siblings preceded him in death.

He married Carol Schukar (deceased) of Willamina, on Feb. 26, 1955. Together they had three children, Dorothy Tuck, Carolyn Stark (deceased), and Donna Nelson. Doyle (as he liked to be called) worked primarily as a commercial truck driver. He left Willamina in 1959 to follow work for Valstead Mill Company to White Sulphur Springs, Mont. Doyle and his two brothers also spent some time as bar managers in Montana. After Montana, he traveled to Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, to work as an earth mover for the Alaskan Pipeline; then to work for the Goodyear Corporation in Spokane, Wash., from 1970 until 1978; returning to Alaska to work on remote islands as a log truck driver. Finally returning to Oregon in 1984, he worked as a log truck driver for Taylor Lumber until the sale of Taylor Lumber in 1990. After that, he found his way to JW Fowler in Dallas, Oregon driving a dump truck, until he retired. Doyle had a small plane pilot's license and loved to fly the family to different locations for vacations. The stories he would share about each place visited, either for work or play, were riveting. Doyle is survived by six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren who will have to settle for the "hand me down" versions, which they are riveting, nonetheless. A celebration of life is scheduled for 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 2, at Fendall Hall, Willamina.

A MESSAGE FROM THE WILLAMINA SCHOOL DISTRICT

School Updates

January is School Board Recognition month, and we want to shout out a big thanks to our dedicated board members; Caryn Stockwell, Ginger Whitman, Karley Strouse, Shane Felton, and Brenda Shenk!

Board members provide the necessary oversight our community members expect to ensure public schools continue to serve our students and staff with the best of intentions.

We are in need of a board member due to the recent resignation of Brenda Shenk. Her resignation is the result of her recent hire as a WSD employee; while we are sad to lose her as a board member, we are thoroughly excited to welcome her as a staff member. She will bring a wealth of knowledge and expertise as an addition to our Ag-Science program.

Several construction projects are underway, near completion, or completed on the Oaken Hills campus. Our beautiful track was completed at the start of the new school year and is truly a source of pride for our district and community. Our baseball/softball-covered batting cage is nearing completion and will be ready for use when the spring sports season begins. Our biggest project, the Middle School Expansion, is in the permitting process, with most of the design and site preparation completed. The construction phase is scheduled to begin upon permitting, hopefully in the early spring. We are adding six new classrooms, administrative offices, and additional restrooms to the existing middle school structure.

The original brick building was built with a capacity expectation of 650-700 students. Over time we added multiple modular buildings to accommodate students when our district merged all schools to the Oaken Hills campus. We are very excited to have new classrooms and office space to meet current needs and grow our programs.

Next week marks the end of the first semester, the halfway point for the school year. It also marks the time for planning for the upcoming school year; budgets, school calendars, staffing needs, and program reviews. Our enrollment increased this school year by nearly 50 and is steady at 900 students. The last time we had an enrollment this high was nearly seven years ago; enrollment growth is a welcome sign for our future!

Please inquire at the district office if you are interested in serving on the board in the current open position. Your school district needs you.

With great Bulldog pride,
Carrie Zimbrick, Superintendent

Mayor Skyberg Takes Oath of Office; Council Addresses Homelessness

The Willamina City Council met on January 10. Two topics on the agenda were the integration of new council members and the issue of homelessness.

The meeting opened with Mayor Ila Skyberg taking the oath of office, along with three new Councilors: Karl Klym, Jennifer Pederson, and Vickie Hernandez. They will attend training to guide them in their new duties. During public comment period, a citizen brought up the affordability of building new homes in Willamina. He asked the City to consider solutions for people who cannot afford the upfront costs of the building. He said some cities have programs to help those experiencing financial difficulties. He is willing to research solutions and mentioned he had communicated with the City staff. City Councilors expressed interest in looking into this issue.

Going further into the issue of affordable housing, next on the agenda was Resolution 22-23-009, authorizing support for the Oregon Mayors Association's (OMA) Taskforce on Homelessness Proposal, which is a partnership between the state of Oregon, and its 241 cities to address the homelessness crisis. As the Council members pointed out during the discussion, the problem is not limited to those living on the streets, it also affects those who face losing their homes due to being unable to afford rent or house payments and those who may be "couch surfing," or staying with whoever will let them stay for a night or longer.

From the OMA's newsletter, funds will be directly allocated to cities in a way that allows each City to decide what approach will be most effective for them:

- Each City will be allocated funds equal to $40 per resident, per the latest official population estimates from Portland State University (PSU).

- In no instance will an incorporated city receive less than $50,000 in direct funding.

- Cities may elect to use the funds for their homelessness response and prevention services or may redirect their funds to community partners who must use the funds for homelessness response and prevention services.

This money must go toward relieving and preventing homelessness, so in response, the City will conduct a survey at the library to get an accurate picture of needs. Additionally, the new Oregon governor has asked that each city create a plan to address the housing crisis within the next 90 days. For Willamina, it will be necessary to conduct a thorough survey of how many people are in crisis to get a clear picture. It's vital that anyone struggling with housing participate. As Sarah Frost pointed out, the library is warm and dry, has wifi, and ways to help connect people to resources. In preparation for the survey, and to make the most of the funding, Bridget Meneley, the new city manager, and Sarah Frost, attended informative workshops and training.

Currently, the City maintains a food pantry and hopes to offer assistance to those who cannot pay their water bill. This funding can help bolster those resources. The City staff said they are taking this issue very seriously and is taking action. The public can help by staying up to date with happenings through the West Valley Bulletin Board, the City's website, and the City's Facebook page.

Flood Season in Oregon is Upon Us; The State Urges Preparation for All

Winter in Oregon brings rain – and lots of it. This year is no different and the Division of Financial Regulation (DFR) reminds people to be prepared. The forecast of rain continues, and some flooding already happened in the Northwest, there are ways you can be ready.

Most Oregonians with flood coverage have it through the National Flood Insurance Program. You can also purchase private flood insurance through your insurance company. Typical homeowner or renter policies do not cover flood damage. If your insurance company does not offer flood insurance, you can shop different companies that do.

DFR has resources available on its website about flood insurance. It is important to be prepared before flooding takes place. One way to do that is to build a financial first-aid kit and inventory. You can do this by:

- Saving account numbers – Have a safe place where those are stored and accessible.
- Have an inventory of your belongings – Take pictures or videos of your items and write down a record of what you have.
- Back up computer files – Consider backing up your information to a secure cloud storage service or keeping an external device with important information backed up somewhere other er than your home.

•Secure important documents – It is critical to keep important papers in a water-tight fire safe or a bank deposit box.

The division also has additional storm damage resources available.

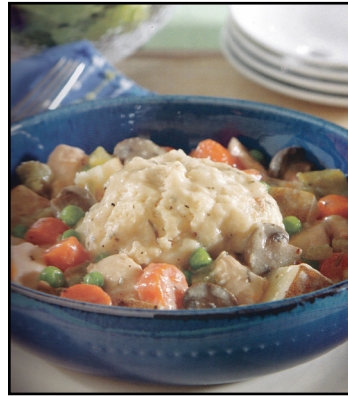

“Water damage from flooding can be devastating to your home,” said Andrew Stolfi, insurance commissioner and Department of Consumer and Business Services director. “Much like a fire, flooding and storm damage can destroy your home and the items you care most about inside it. Being prepared will make dealing with the aftermath much easier.”

If you do have coverage and need to file a claim, immediately contact your insurer or agent. Also, save any receipts from repairs, housing, food, mitigation (sand bags, pumps, etc.) because reimbursements may be part of your coverage.

Before going back into your home, make sure it is safe to do so. Flood damage can make buildings insecure and unsteady. Also, you want to be careful of gas leaks and electrical wires in flooded areas.

If you don't have flood insurance, consider purchasing it. Even those who don't live in flood zones are susceptible under certain conditions. Contact your agent or the National Flood Insurance Program.

Celebrate Twins 90 Extraordinary Years Filled With

Lora Hofmann, the chairperson of the invitations committee, and daughter of Gale invites the community to join the families of Gale and Dale Schmitz in celebration of their 90th birthdays. The party will be from 1-3 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 21, 2023, at the Aumsville Community Center, 595 Main Street, Aumsville, Oregon.

A light buffet lunch will be served, as well as cake and punch. The gift of your presence is all that is needed.

Lora provided a brief history and anecdotes about Dale and Gale Schmitz.

Dale is the oldest, and his full name is Franklin Dale. Gale's full name is Delano Gale. They were born in Nebraska during the depression in a farming community. Their parents didn't have much money, and the doctor said he would cut his bill in half if he could name the twins. So, being staunch Democrats and believing in the newly elected "new deal" president, the twins were named after the great Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Their mother gave birth to five boys in four years. First came James, then the twin's Dale and Gale. Two years later, another set of twins, Dean and Jean, came along. They had a daughter a couple of years later.

When Dale and Gale were three, the family came to Oregon, eventually settling on a farm outside McMinnville. Their parents worked in the turkey factories, and the family had a dairy. Many stories about the mischief they got into abound. A family favorite was about them pouring farm gas across the gravel road and lighting it on fire. When a car came, they would hide in the grain field so no one would see them. It was all fun and games until the day a car stopped, and an angry man chased them through the field.

The twins graduated from Dayton High School.

Gale married Betty Agee, who was part of a pioneer family from Gopher Valley. Gayle and Betty had four children.

Dale married Lorene Williamson. Dale and his wife had five children. Gale was a farmer who also did mill work (working for the Hurls' which eventually became Boise Cascade). Dale also farmed and, at one time, worked for Fort Hill Lumber.

All of the many Schmitz kids graduated from Willamina High School. There was a Schmitz child in every graduating class except two from 1970 through 1980. Both men served on the school district budget committee.

When their children started high school, the two men, with their wives, built and started a restaurant that would be a safe and inexpensive place for kids to come after sports practices, and such, to call home and get a coke and fries while they waited for their parents to pick them up. It was the Hi Spot, now known as Coyote Joe's. Dale and Lorene bought out Gale and Betty. It was a popular place for farmers to come for a coffee and donuts (they were 10 cents apiece back then) as they caught up on that morning's local gossip. At noon it was the place for high schoolers and mill workers to get a quick lunch; in the afternoon, it became a hangout for kids, and in the evenings, a place for families to get dinner. Lorene's donuts and pies were famous.

In later years Dale and Lorene joined the Fendall Community Hall. Lorene's pecan pie always brought one of the highest prices at the Community Hall's annual pie auction. Dale still supports Fendall, buying others' pies at the auction.

Dale and Lorene had a bean farm. They provided many teenagers with money for school clothes over the years. After being injured in a mill accident and almost losing his arm, Gale did custom farming in addition to farming his own 90 acres off of Houser Road.

The two brothers decided to go into the chicken business. They would buy baby chicks, raise them into laying hens and roosters and sell the eggs to Belozers Hatchery in Hubbard. Their eggs were hatched and became Oregon-grown fryers. That is all they will eat to this day.

Local Adventures and Stories

Gale decided one year he would save money on feeding the chickens until they started laying eggs by "free-ranging" them. This wouldn't have been too bad, but the chickens eventually had to be "herded" into the chicken house to start producing. A county road split Gale's property, the chickens free-ranged on the west side of the road, and the chicken house was on the east side. Trying to "herd" chickens was quite a task. One of the children was put squarely in the middle of the road to keep cars from hitting the chickens, and one was put at the bottom of the hill to "turn the herd" toward the chicken house. The others went to the back of the property and started herding the chickens down the hill. This caused quite a commotion, chickens squawking and flying a few feet at a time, kids yelling "hey now, hey now," mud and feathers going everywhere. It took Gale two weeks to go out by flashlight to catch all those chickens after dark.

Both men were civic-minded all of their lives. The two brothers helped build the Free Methodist church in Willamina. There was just a small chapel, and they helped to construct the main sanctuary. Dale supported himself as a sheet rocker for some time in his life; Gale was a roofer for a portion of his life.

Dale was involved with the fire department and was instrumental in starting the ambulance service. He was a member of the first ambulance crew and ran the ambulance for a while.

Gale, in later years, went to school and became a realtor before retiring. He sold many properties in the area. Dale drove a school bus for the Sheridan School District before retiring. He was famous for handing out candy to good passengers. Suffice it to say; he had very few problems with students.

Both enjoyed fishing and traveling. Gale and Betty traveled to

New Zealand and Australia several times, mining for opals, riding a camel, and even visiting the sites where World War II soldiers went on leave. Gale's brother-in-law, Ray Agee, had been a Japanese prisoner of war. On one of their trips, Gale and Betty took Ray and his wife to visit places Ray had been as a soldier. Gale and Betty also ventured to 40 of the 50 states. Betty was an avid letter writer and had "pen pals" in Australia, New Zealand, and Scotland. Gale and Betty hosted each of those pen pals over the years.

Dale and Lorene also traveled. They went to Alaska every summer to visit their daughter Sherry. Dale bought a piece of property on the Kenai River and caught many, many salmon. Gale eventually bought the property next to Dale's, and they fished together. Dale's daughter Sherry still has the Kenai property and encourages her dad to come up and show "the youngins" how to fish.

Gale and Betty eventually sold their home and moved to Stayton to be closer to their oldest son and daughter. Dale sold the upper piece of his property and still resides on the lower piece near the river.

Both men lost their first wives - almost a week to the minute apart.

For further information about the upcoming event call Lora Hofmann, 503 871-0472.

Oregon State Fire Marshal Kicks Off Community Risk Reduction Week

Oregon State Fire Marshal (OSFM) Mariana Ruiz-Temple calls on Oregonians to practice fire safety at home by taking steps to help eliminate the fire risk. To bring attention to this effort, the OSFM is marking Jan. 16-22, 2023, as Community Risk Reduction (CRR) Week.

Community risk reduction is a data-driven effort to identify and prioritize local risks and take steps to reduce their occurrence and impact to keep communities safer.

Across Oregon, cooking was the number one cause of home fires in 2021, making up 19 percent of reported fires. Heating was the second cause of fires, making up 15 percent of all reported fires. Also, in 2021, fires within the wildland-urban interface caused more than $186,000 in property damage.

"These statistics show the importance of practicing fire safety and being aware of the risks of fire," Ruiz-Temple said. "There are several simple things that Oregonians and visitors can do to reduce the risk of fire in and around their homes."

Cooking Fire Safety

- Keep an eye on what you're cooking; don't leave cooking unattended.

- Keep cooking areas clean and clear of potholders, food packaging, towels, etc., and wipe up surface spills.

- Create a three-foot kid- and pet-free zone around the stove.

- Older children should only cook under adult supervision.

- Have a lid or cookie sheet within reach while cooking to smother flames in case of a fire.

Home Heating/Electrical Safety

- Keep things that burn, such as paper, curtains, bedding, or furniture, at least three feet away from all heating equipment, including fireplaces, wood stoves, and pellet stoves.

- Unplug portable space heaters when not in use, before going to bed, or when leaving the room.

- Plug appliances (portable space heaters, refrigerators, stoves, washers, dryers, etc.) directly into a wall outlet and never a power strip or extension cord. Extension cords are for temporary use only.

Wildfire Defensible Space

- Remove dead and dry vegetation, mulch, and other materials.

- Keep roofs, gutters, and decks free of combustible materials.

- Consider having fire-resistant plants within the designated defensible space area.

The Oregon State Fire Marshal has several resources available to help Oregonians reduce the risk of a fire. To learn more, visit the CRR Week page on the OSFM website: www.oregon.gov/osp/programs/sfm/Pages/CRR-Week.aspx.
